Non-Final Office Action

Specification

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1, 8, 9, and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bartlett, U.S. Patent 6,282,040 B1.

Referring to claims 1, 9, and 16:

- a. In column 2, lines 1-5, Bartlett discloses data and identifier data (user data and non-user data written across at least two channels of a data-holding medium, said data being arranged into a plurality of data items each containing user data and non-user data).
- b. In column 2, lines 6-15, Bartlett discloses that data is written in sets of data blocks, and an end of a said set of data blocks is marked by recording an end of data indicator (with said non-user data holding information relating to said user data). When data is written to the data storage medium such that this causes existing pre-recorded data on the data storage medium to be overwritten, then unless the write operation starts at an existing end of data indicator field recorded on said data storage medium, a value of the identifier data is incremented (including write pass number information).

c. In column 2, lines 52-61, Bartlett discloses adding a data block header to each said data block, wherein said data block header uniquely identifies a vintage of said recorded data, suitably, on an occasion that data is written to the data storage medium which causes existing pre-recorded data on the data storage medium to be overwritten, an identifier data field within the data block header is incremented. The increment is made relative to a previous value of said identifier data (data items written across the said channels at the same time being identified as a set of data items, said data reader holding a current write pass number and having a read head for reading a respective said channel of said data-holding medium to generate a data signal comprising said data items, and processing circuitry arranged to receive and process said data signals of a set of data items, including processing said write pass number information of each of said data items in said set, and causing updating of said current write pass number held by said data reader on the basis of the write pass number information of said data items in said set).

Referring to claim 8, in column 4, lines 66-67 continued in column 5, lines 1-15, Bartlett discloses a data reader.

Allowable Subject Matter

Art Unit: 2113

4. Claims 2-7 and 10-15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
